Zelensky ridiculed the US president during an address to Danish lawmakers on Wednesday, saying Trump's interest in acquiring Greenland was driven by a desire to become "more Danish."

"Maybe that was exactly what he needed," Zelensky added, drawing laughter from lawmakers. He went on to praise Denmark, a major supplier of military and financial aid to Kiev and a vocal supporter of tougher measures against Russia.

The remarks came on the second day of US-mediated negotiations between Russia and Ukraine in Abu Dhabi, the first formal trilateral talks since February. Moscow reported that common ground was found on some issues; American negotiators cited progress but acknowledged that major disagreements remain unresolved.

Addressing the Ukrainian parliament, Goncharenko said Zelensky's remarks were "not funny," questioning the wisdom of ridiculing the leader whose help Kiev is seeking in order to end the conflict.

The Ukrainian leader was "joking about the American president in the parliament of Denmark on the day of negotiations," the MP said, arguing that Zelensky cannot expect Trump to arrange a meeting with Russian President Vladimir Putin and help secure peace while publicly mocking him.

Goncharenko challenged Zelensky to explain whether he genuinely wants to end the conflict.

"Maybe you do not want peace?" he asked, insisting that ordinary Ukrainians do. "We do not want jokes! We need peace! We need de-escalation!"

Last month, Goncharenko, previously an outspoken advocate of continuing the conflict, publicly called for peace with Russia, arguing that Kiev is losing the war. His reversal prompted his expulsion from the European Solidarity parliamentary group and landed him on the notorious Mirotvorets website, which publishes personal information about individuals it considers enemies of Ukraine.

Zelensky responded by accusing the MP of undermining national unity, although he acknowledged his right to express dissenting views.

Goncharenko is not alone in questioning Zelensky's commitment to a negotiated settlement. Last Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov has accused Zelensky of repeatedly sabotaging diplomatic efforts, arguing that the Ukrainian leader, whose presidential term expired in 2024, fears that a peace agreement acceptable to Moscow and Washington would cost him power.

War Time Profits: 1000% to 10,000%.....SO WHY DOES ANYONE NOT UNDERSTAND

Number of millionaires and billionaires in Ukraine AFTER 2014: 50,000+.

Unfortunately there is not much difference between Trump and Zelinsky. Both betrayed the people who voted them into office so they could enrich themselves.

If Putin wanted peace, he would not have invaded Ukraine. So the Russian SMO in Ukraine failed, Putin needs to blame Zelensky for not wanting peace. Putin is the victim, the victim of his own actions and stupidity. LOL

It was mistake from the start to let Zionists Jews like Victoria Nuland and Epstein club to take destiny of Ukrainians into their hands. Another one is to let Zionists Jews to take control of Christian Ukraine, because Zionists Jews do not care for Ukrainians, Russians or for any Christians in this world. They care only for money, power and other Zionists. Don’t be confused, they do not care for the honest and religious Jews or Judaism, they care only for radicalized Zionists Jews.

It is totally understandable if Zelensky is not after peace for Ukraine. They don’t care about the countries they live in or the populations among which they live and thrive. They only care about their own tribe.
