US President Donald Trump's special envoy, Steve Witkoff, arrived in Moscow early on Wednesday morning. He is expected to discuss the settlement of the Ukraine conflict with senior Russian officials.

Witkoff's plane landed at Vnukovo Airport, where he was welcomed by presidential investment envoy Kirill Dmitriev, who is also the CEO of the Russian Direct Investment Fund (RDIF).

The two were later seen strolling in Zaryadye Park in central Moscow near the Kremlin.

Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov earlier said that a face-to-face meeting between Witkoff and Russian President Vladimir Putin could not be ruled out.

Witkoff arrived in Moscow days after Trump threatened to impose sanctions on Russia unless significant progress is made in the settlement process. The US president signaled that the restrictions could include 100% tariffs and secondary sanctions targeting Russia's trade partners, particularly in the oil sector.

Since Trump’s inauguration, Witkoff has held several rounds of negotiations with Russia. His last visit to the country took place in late April. The talks revolved around the Ukraine conflict, US-Russia prisoner swaps, and bilateral ties.

On Monday, Ukrainian media reported that Witkoff’s visit to Moscow would coincide with talks between US Special Envoy for Ukraine Keith Kellogg and officials in Kiev.

US Ambassador to NATO Matthew Whitaker has expressed hope that the visit would pave the way for “a breakthrough” in negotiations over Ukraine.

As Trump has repeatedly pushed Russia and Ukraine to work out a peace deal, the countries held three rounds of direct talks in Istanbul in May, June, and late July. While the sides have failed to reach a breakthrough, they agreed to several major prisoner swaps.

Russia insists that a sustainable peace deal must include Ukraine’s commitment to stay out of NATO, demilitarization, and the recognition of the new territorial reality on the ground. Kiev has rejected the terms.

The US created this conflict by overthrowing the Ukraine government and installing the Zelensky puppet. It should end the same way. Total capitulation by US and NATO, withdrawal of all western weapons and forces to where ever Mr.Putin draws the line. Then take your puppets with you on the plane Witkoff.

These gimmicks will hardly work. For a speedy and stable ceasefire, the Single Most important condition is :

Trump, Back off from Ukraine project, keep your tongue in check and pay serious attention to Putin's demands.

Trump is humped. He talks big mouth trash but is a coward to face Putin in person. Reminds me of the kid who told the other kid he was going to beat his ass but then sends his big brother instead. USA is full of diarrhea.

Russia tolerates these visits purely for PR purposes, so the western MSM cannot say they were unwilling to negotiate.

But... their position remains unchanged. The core issues must be addressed.

I don't understand what they are keeping talking about when Russia told them how the war in Ukraine will end. Why the USA can't accept another their lost war. They lost every USA war since world war II and now they want to win war with Russia and China.

The latest information I heard is that Trump sent his dog to Moscow to plead Putin to release Britain and NATO officers who were captured some day ago in Ukraine! It seems that Brits plead Orange monkey to do that!

I think Russia would publicize that unless WWII has started in earnest and both sides are reluctant to admit it.

Mr. Steve Witkoff is wasting his time if he travelled to Moscow to issue more threats of sanctions, secondary sanctions, tariffs, and deployment of more nukes in Europe. The US/NATO has only one viable option; to accept Russia's terms. To
