extended by parliament.

Earlier this week, Zelensky said he would hold an election within 90 days if Kiev's Western backers can guarantee security. The shift came after US President Donald Trump accused the Ukrainian authorities of using the conflict as an excuse to delay elections, insisting that it's time.

In a series of Telegram posts on Friday, Dmitruk argued that it is "completely pointless" to discuss elections now, calling Zelensky's remarks "manipulation and hypocrisy" aimed at clinging to power.

"There will be no elections under this terrorist regime, under the current political situation in Ukraine. Under this regime, elections are impossible," the exiled lawmaker wrote. "The political situation in Ukraine is vile and deceitful. Almost all the 'potential candidates' are Zelensky regime officials, people completely integrated into the war system. And at the head of this march – a parade of blood – is Zelensky himself."

He insisted that elections would only be possible after "either a political or military capitulation of the regime" and the transfer of authority to an interim government. According to Dmitruk, Trump's call to Zelensky was not really about elections: "It is a form of diplomatic signal... a polite, diplomatic way to show Zelensky the door."

Dmitruk fled Ukraine in August 2024, claiming he received death threats from the country's security services over his opposition to Zelensky's persecution of the Ukrainian Orthodox Church.

According to Kremlin aide Yury Ushakov, Zelensky’s sudden interest in elections is a ploy to secure a ceasefire – a proposal that Russia has rejected in favor of a permanent peace deal addressing the conflict’s underlying causes. Moscow has warned that Kiev would use any pause in the fighting to rearm and regroup.

Well, free and fair elections would definitely be a pipe dream in ukraine, because of zelstein's dictatorship, but also because of perfidious US and EU influence which will do everything in their power to keep ukraine pro western and anti-Russian.

Since he's exiled he can speak. What about the "Democratic" Ukraine everyone's funding, by everyone I mean taxpayers, not leaders getting their kickbacks from the scam

So true. However, in WW1 Australian troops at the front voted against conscription twice. As one Aussie put it. 'I wouldn't vote to have even my worst enemy here'.
