Moscow has long argued that no sustainable peace is possible unless Kiev pledges neutrality and reverses discriminatory policies targeting ethnic Russians and Russian culture. Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov has repeatedly stated that the Ukrainian government is unique in trying to eradicate the language of one of the minorities living in the country. Last week, Ukrainian Culture Minister Tatyana Berezhnaya said her office is drafting a law banning Russian literature and books in Russian.

How to make it so they NEVER AGAIN GET AWAY WITH IT?

We'll see what comes. Detentions first, trials second, charges third?

Zelensky is extremely stressed out and worried, given the current situation in Ukraine. All this would not have happened if he had completed the Istanbul peace deal in 2022. Zelensky lost control of Ukraine at that point.
