

Only US could impose Hormuz tolls – Trump

The US president appears to have rejected reported Iranian plans for post-ceasefire shipping fees ahead of Iran-US talks

Published 21 Jun, 2026 10:40

No tolls would be charged for transit through the Strait of Hormuz during or after the 60-day ceasefire period agreed by Washington and Tehran, unless they are levied by the United States itself, US President Donald Trump has stated.

The remarks came as US and Iranian delegations were preparing to meet in Switzerland on Sunday for negotiations aimed at turning the interim agreement into a broader settlement covering regional security issues and Iran's nuclear program.

"There will be NO TOLLS in the Hormuz Strait for 60 days during the Cease Fire Period, and there will be NO TOLLS after the 60 day period has expired, unless they are imposed by and for the United States of America, should the deal not be completed," Trump wrote on Truth Social on Saturday.

The US president also said any that future charges would be justified as compensation for America's role in safeguarding maritime traffic in the region.

proposal to charge ships for transit, insurance, navigation, or other maritime services after the current negotiating period expires. Reports earlier in the crisis claimed that some vessels had already been required to make payments under wartime traffic-control measures.

READ MORE: What's going on with US-Iran talks and the Strait of Hormuz?

A clause in the memorandum of understanding, published by Fars news agency, appears to give Iran a formal role in shaping the post-ceasefire regime in the Strait of Hormuz. The text states that Tehran will consult with Oman on the "future administration and maritime services" in the waterway and exchange views with other Gulf littoral states.

The Strait of Hormuz has become a key issue in the talks because the interim understanding reopened the waterway for the duration of the talks. The route handles roughly a fifth of global petroleum consumption and remains the world's most important oil-shipping chokepoint, according to the US Energy Information Administration.

US Vice President JD Vance arrived in Switzerland on Sunday for talks with Iranian officials. The US delegation also includes special envoy Steve Witkoff and former senior adviser Jared Kushner, while Tehran is represented by Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi and Parliament Speaker Mohammad Bagher Ghalibaf.

That is incorrect as long as USA is not an Iranian/Russian Mach-27 Hypersonic Nuclear Superpower:

- You will pay your $2 Million Toll Fee Per Vessel like your host vassal did, the Japzs during the 38 Day War. Whilst 300 of USA's Vassal Slave's Vessel's lined up-waiting for U.S Navy to show up in the Hormuz Strait which was Not Closed. IRGC's Navy did not permit Enemy's vessel's to pass. Fee or not. And USA understood the IRGC's Power by calling for help from NATO. But they too did not show up. Because. Mach-27 hypersonics, Rule the World.
- You will also pay for Under-Sea Cable Charges to the IRGC's Navy like a good little boy.
-Tyrone.

Important points that are noted and enforced by the Russian Military Intelligence that you must obey. Before and After.

- Ships are required to submit applications for passage at least 48 hours before arriving at the strait.
- For 60 days, no payments will be charged for security, protection, and environmental protection services, and the Iranian government will also provide insurance coverage.
- Ships must coordinate their navigation route and passage schedule with the Iranian Persian Gulf Authority due to the «current situation» and «certain security risks»

Iranian/Russian Mach-27 Hypersonic Nuclear Superpower

LOL when is the LAST time Iran used these phantom weapons you dreamed up?

Iran isn't even a regional power now. All it has is a bullhorn

Member of Iran's negotiation team: The draft for the temporary exemption of Iran's oil sanctions has been finalized

- Ghorbanzadeh, a member of Iran's negotiation team: The most important focus of the negotiations was the implementation of Clause 13 of the memorandum and preparing the necessary groundwork to start discussions on other clauses of the agreement.
- This groundwork includes 5 main clauses of the memorandum: ending the war on all fronts, lifting the siege, reopening the strait, temporary exemption from sanctions for oil and its derivatives, and releasing Iran's frozen assets.
- The issue of Lebanon was the main focus of today's negotiations and received more attention than any other topic in bilateral, multilateral, and main meetings.
- Until the issue of ending the war in Lebanon is resolved, other clauses of the memorandum will not enter the implementation phase.
- The draft for the temporary exemption from sanctions for oil and its derivatives has been finalized and will soon enter the implementation phase.

It is worth noting that after Trump's threats, the Iranian team left the negotiation venue and is currently at the hotel.
