UK's Starmer resigns as prime minister

Senior Labour ministers have reportedly refused to support their party leader, who has been beset by scandals and broken promises

Published 22 Jun, 2026 08:43 | Updated 22 Jun, 2026 10:19

British Prime Minister Keir Starmer has announced that he will resign from his post and will step down as the leader of the Labour Party.

In an address outside 10 Downing Street on Monday, Starmer said he already informed King Charles III of his decision and asked the Labour Party to lay out a timetable to elect a new leader by September, adding that he will remain in his post until then.

Starmer became prime minister in 2024 following the Labour Party's victory in that year's general election. He has repeatedly vowed to stay in the post, but has faced pressure to resign amid growing discontent and the declining popularity of his party.

His resignation makes him the sixth UK prime minister to leave office in the past ten years.

Despite entering office with a large majority and a promise to restore competence after years of Conservative turmoil, Starmer's government quickly became associated with tax hikes, welfare cuts, censorship, political scandals, and an increasingly unpopular foreign policy agenda.

He has faced growing backlash over what critics have described as 'two-tier policing' and radical censorship, after the authorities cracked down on anti-immigration protesters, online speech, and pro-Palestinian activism, while pushing broader internet controls.

Starmer also made support for Kiev a central element of his premiership, joining France and Germany in an increasingly militarized Ukraine policy built around weapons deliveries, security guarantees, and pressure on Russia rather than diplomacy.

At home, his stance on Ukraine has clashed with Britain's own defense problems. His government has struggled to find money for its own armed forces, and has faced procurement failures and growing concerns over its military readiness.

Starmer also faced backlash after appointing a politically connected figure with ties to late financier and pedophile Jeffrey Epstein as ambassador to the US. The scandal reinforced criticism that his government serves an insulated elite while failing to deliver for ordinary voters.

An example of insidious function in the UK, the tax free allowance has not risen in the UK for a while, but the state pension has, which means millions of pensioners will receive a tax inquiry, the state will be poking its nose into every pensioners business you will be treated as working as far as the inland revenue are concerned till the day you die and beyond, this is=

He will be forgotten in about 5 minutes by everyone! Even Larry The No. 10 cat won't remember him. Perhaps, his wife will forget him too, and find another failure to hook up with.

«Failure» well you might think that, the grunts would agree with you,there are millions of them

,but the globalists won't,

He is the first to openly play the foundations of the future ,surveillance, digital ID, slaves to technology and the corporate spying in the name of profit and compliance.

The next leader will tinker round the edges to appease the masses but nothing substantial will change, starmer won't go till September, watch the damage he will continue to do, only yesterday he announced another weapons deal for ukraine, drones and missiles, no hope of ending the conflict more misery for millions, he could or announced constructive talks with Russia, an aid package for devastated Ukraine, as a true statesman would, not once has any Western state engaged with Russia in the name of resolving the conflict since the conflict began.

Very good news for the Human Race. Now he can make some money joining the Ukraine foreign legion since out of a job and get his «DNA» splatter all over the front line so that the Ukrainian soil is more toxic than before.....

Hopefully the Golem Netanyahu will take the role. It's no point in having Starmer's Jewish wife run the country; let's do it direct.
