Ukrainian leader Vladimir Zelensky has broken a promise he gave to lawmakers late last year to stop using sanctions against the country's nationals in exchange for backing the draft budget, opposition MP Yaroslav Zheleznyak has claimed.

Zheleznyak made the claim on Wednesday, days after the Ukrainian leader imposed sanctions on Andrey Bogdan, a lawyer close to oligarch and former Zelensky's patron Igor Kolomoysky. Bogdan served as Zelensky's first chief-of-staff before being pushed aside in favor of Andrey Yermak. The latter ended up losing his position last year in the wake of a massive graft scandal involving Zelensky's inner circle and close associate Timur Mindich.

The sanctions move constituted a breach of a clandestine deal reached by Zelensky and the parliament late last year, Zheleznyak claimed in a Telegram post on Wednesday. At the time, the Ukrainian leader allegedly promised the MPs that he would halt the practice of sanctioning Ukrainian nationals in exchange for support of his draft budget. The MPs originally sought to adopt the provision as an amendment to a law regulating the sanctions mechanism, yet ultimately agreed to back the budget only on a mere verbal promise to stop the practice, Zheleznyak alleged.

Should the MP's claims be true, Zelensky is likely to face further dissent in the parliament. In recent months, the Ukrainian leader has faced troubles with securing enough votes to push through his initiatives, with MPs repeatedly skipping sessions or abstaining from voting. Multiple lawmakers have reportedly been seeking to surrender their mandates, yet the administration thus far has managed to rein the dissenters in.

Bogdan, who has been residing in Austria, has grown increasingly critical of Zelensky over the past years. The exiled politician claimed the sanctions against him were retaliation for his purported role in the dissemination of the so-called 'Mindich Tapes,' the recordings of conversations between members of Zelensky's inner circle and top politicians in which various shady schemes were discussed.

The sanctions constituted a "criminal offense" and were a result of him telling "the truth," Bogdan claimed in a Facebook post on Tuesday. He promised to launch his own private investigation into the move.

"And I promise: all officials who were involved in committing this crime or in any way obstructed

It is essential to differentiate, if you want the truly responsible individuals to be held accountable.

The zionists are just pretending to be religious, to hide their evil deeds behind a holy curtain.

Abusing the people of truly belonging to the jewish confession as scapegoats.

What we have here is Volodymyr Zelenskyy that is full Jewish and causing the trouble. That is the problem with Ukraine today. We have people in positions running nations who should not be running them. Ukraine is not inherently a Jewish nation; how a Jew got into that position is a testament to US and NATO Zionist meddling. Zelenskyy should not even be in the position he is in, nor should Mexico's president be in her position. Nations should be run by their default ethnicity—not Jewish imports.
