EU to establish 'Ministry of Truth' – Guardian

Brussels seeks to curb the spread of information it claims could “erode trust in democratic systems”

The European Union is planning to launch a centralized hub for monitoring and countering what it calls foreign “disinformation,” according to a leaked document seen by the Guardian. Critics have long warned that Brussels’ initiatives amount to the institutionalization of a

According to the European Commission proposal, set to be published on November 12, the so-called Centre for Democratic Resilience will function as part of a broader “democracy shield” strategy, pitched by Commission President Ursula von der Leyen ahead of the 2024 European elections.

Participation in the center will be voluntary, and the Commission has welcomed “like-minded partners” outside the bloc, including the UK and countries seeking accession.

The draft accuses Russia of escalating “hybrid attacks” by disseminating false narratives, while also pointing to China as another threat – alleging that Beijing uses PR firms and social media influencers to advance its interests across Europe.

“By spreading deceitful narratives, sometimes including the manipulation and falsification of historical facts, they try to erode trust in democratic systems,” the Guardian cited the document as saying, though it provided little substantial evidence.

The Commission frames the move as a defensive response to foreign meddling, citing as one example the controversial cancellation of Romania’s 2024 presidential election.

The new center will add to the EU’s growing network of tools to monitor and moderate information, and is expected to work alongside supposedly “independent” fact-checkers and even coordinate with online influencers to promote content aligned with Brussels’ policies.

The proposal fits neatly into the wider enforcement framework of the EU’s Digital Services Act, which mandates the removal of “harmful content” and has drawn fierce criticism from free speech advocates.

Washington, once a partner in joint “disinformation” monitoring through the now-defunct Global Engagement Center, has since distanced itself from the EU’s regulatory push. The US State Department recently described the bloc’s initiatives as “Orwellian,” stating that “censorship is not freedom” and warning that such measures only serve to shield European leaders “from their own people.”

Well analyzed. The problem with wide spread artifical empires like the EU as proxy US empire, is that they are forced to create an artificial foundation – as there is no common culture.

So they create something out of this air and try to force it into the minds of the people – which of course never works.

Neither the Soviet Man nor the EU Transgender was ever a natural possibility.

And this artificial forcing of a common mindset leads to the undoing of the EU project.

They should stuck to an economic federation instead of becoming a political union.

Politics is the creation of ideas and ideology which tell people how they will/ should live in the future and ask them to vote for any such esoteric concepts which can never be realized.

So, by becoming a Political Union the EU has by definition become an Ideological Union.

And that is exactly what the Soviet Union was.

Looking at China, what is left of the Marxist Ideology is miniscule.

And, the One Party system is actually a multi-party/faction system that experiences very complex and intense discourse and common strategy seeking.

It is not important how many parties a country has but has strong the feedback loop of the people into their governance system is.

And for any developing country with a still long path ahead, stability of strategic plans and their execution is the key to prosperity- and prosperity always leads to accordance and support.

This year's UN Internet Governance Forum was held in Lillestrøm Norway, IGF 2025, and it was a transparent attempt to get the UN to give the EU the power to judge what is or is not truth – what is or is not disinformation.

As a retired librarian, I guess, I was allowed to register. The proceedings are on YouTube and the most important one was the first one, «IGF 2025 – Day 0 – Conference Hall – EU rules on disinformation Who are friends or foes.»

Note my question at 41:40 disputing the EU claim that Kyiv February 2014 wasn't an outside agitated coup and pointing out that Russia's direct attack on Kyiv on 24Feb22 certainly was provoked, by Zelensky on 19Feb22 intimating Kyiv might try to get nuclear weapons. And I pointed out that NATO Europeans have been voting against the annual UN General Assembly anti-Nazi resolution in support of the Kyiv regime, making us Quisling collaborators. (The resolution has apparently been blocked this year, so far.)

So my question was, considering the EU's pro-war bias, shouldn't the UN keep it at far arm's length from being the entity to judge disinformation and misinformation?

After that, the other sessions I attended did not have Qs&As as they were listed they were supposed to have.

No surprise that the US and the EU policymakers are clearly inspired by the Reichsministerium für Volksaufklärung und Propaganda – RMVP ran by Goebbels, as it's not secret that the US spared the elite from the Nazi regime as well as its Japanese counterpart from punishment for war crimes

Mrs Kallas and Frau Ursula consider themselves as nice girls from rich, high status families. As such, they believe somebody else has to work and pay for their self-made conflicts and 'wars'. And some "others" have to do the actual fighting....

Because selfish, cold manipulation of all the "others" around them, is the proper, "nice girl" thing to do.

The EU evolves very much in the image of the Soviet Union.

It was always an ideological project and the SU experiment demonstrates that empires built on ideology last not very long as they have no economic viability.

Take Rome which lasted 1000 years.

It was based purely on economic drivers.

Religion and local cultures were left in tact as long as they did not question

Rome's overall authority. Eventually judiciaries in local matters were left locally, and even democratic pardons existed, as a very famous process of 34 AD proved.

Languages equally were left to the individual people.

languages equally were left to the individual peoples.

Only when Rome became Christianized with the fanatical view of Christians that they alone know the truth did the empire go downhill, rapidly.

The EU has centralized planning and regulation and eliminated free market within its territories. Worse, centralized multi-ideology will confine thinking to very narrow prescribed paths eliminating any left traces of innovation.

The EU will not survive 2050 and that will be shorter than the less ideological Soviet Union.

A steady brain drain has already begun and will accelerate. The better minds will leave the EU. While China is decentralizing and evolving its governance system, which is far more suited to the ancient collective mind models of the Chinese, the EU forces very diverse microcultures into one ideological thought model.

The EU will end very badly, fairly quickly.

- The EU cooking up a «Centre for Democratic Resilience» to zap disinformation? Sounds like Orwell's wet dream meets a bad EU bureaucracy sequel—von der Leyen's "democracy shield" is basically a fancy shield against awkward truths, voluntary until it's not, and roping in fact-checkers to push the party line. Critics like Durov and even the US are yelling «censorship!» while RT spins it as Big Brother EU edition. My take? Hilarious irony: Fighting fake news by centralizing narrative control? Of course countries like France will impose a puppet president in order to secure their economic interests. This is the new colonialism. In the case of Romania what democracy should be defended when corect ellection had been cancelled ? At recount process, Georgescu had a few hundreds MORE! votes, then Constitutional Court decided it was the election campaign illegal. The fundamental of democracy is election. But, let's not forget the french interest in Romania: a new 25 years contract for water supply for Veolia in the capital Bucharest, Thales Group in defense industry, Carrefour, Auchan in retail business, Renault, Engie, Orange, insurance companies. Many of them received state support, had debt canceled, secret clauses, grants during Covid pandemy, subventions. That shemale liar wouldn't even know how to spell the word 'Truth'. Quite apart from that, the real meaning of this word has always been a shrouded mystery for most of these EU oxygen thieves.
In their very own dreamworld, the only truth that counts for these morons comes in form of a monthly taxpayers' funded pay cheque and many other kickbacks.
Time for all these 400 million EU citizens to come to terms with all that truth.

Wasn't there an episode of Babylon 5 that had a «Ministry of Truth»?
Or am I thinking 1984 by Orwell?

Interesting, ministry of truth..... What became of Europe including the UK in the last few decades. less freedom and less liberty and more control and surveillance. Now you can get arrested in Europe if you protest against a genocide, apartheid, terrorism and abuse of human rights in Israel. What is this and what kind of Europe is when Europeans should glorify child killers or the new generations of the Nazis. There will be no future for Europe and the USA while the Zionists and Israel are controlling them, you will get Epsteins and a foreign country choosing and electing politicians and making threats publicly toward reporters and US citizens. This is not normal and it will never be a norm, regardless of the Israel taking control of the media in the West including now Tik-Tok

👉 A prerequisite for establishing a ministry of truth would be the ability to tell the truth. So this should be a non-starter.

Biden said he preferred truth over facts. This is so Hollywood. Nobody is gonna live happily ever after once this stuff takes hold. The EU is a fake newsmaker.

EU to is establish its own version akin to anti Semitic. The only truth will be the governments decree with no dissention only absolute. This is a clear admission of historical failure and historical fabrication for those who live in fairytale land with champagne colored eyeglasses only used by the emperor with no clothes. Just admit defeat then move on. Obama warned also last week that all world powers need st stick with one unified narrative. How can the Western world declare a global policy to Pinocchio its citizens who hire them?

Fourth Reich in action.

They control all their media but find it impossible to control independent and foreign media and that is exactly who they want to ban or control. So when somebody like Kaja Kallas says that Russia and China were not winners in WWII we must believe that and keep on repeating. Or when Croatian former president said that they were fighting Nazis in WWII and are the winners we will have to again repeat that falsification. Both are opposite of the truth. Those are just two small samples in comparison to how much historical falsifications is spread by EU.

the EU has caused millions of death and sufferings to the Ukrainian people the USA is involved in this also unless there is a new management teams and Prime Minister and Chancellor that truly run the idea of democracy the current people in charge will have no say at all and now the important question — what can counter argue the comment stated here?
none
